William Cook Cast Products in association with Anthony Bannwart works with clients to create champagne and wine buckets that are elegant, lasting and entirely unique

Designed in Switzerland, made in the UK

Bridging timeless aesthetic with modern manufacturing, this bronze bell-shaped bucket on its wrought-iron stand keeps your champagne and wine cool for hours.

Designed by Swiss interdisciplinary artist Anthony Bannwart and brought to life by UK manufacturer William Cook Cast Products, the authentic champagne bucket is a tribute to the dwindling art of bell casting – giving new life to the traditional cow bells that have been seen and heard across Alpine regions for centuries.

Design

The champagne bucket is available in two designs:

- Edelweiss – this design is reminiscent of the artist's home, the Swiss mountains. The Edelweiss bucket is decorated with a repetitive Alpine flower motif on the exterior belt. (Fig. 01)
- City – the pure vintage style of this design is inspired by the Art Deco era with a contemporary minimalist edge, featuring a horizontally convex fluted exterior pattern. (Fig. 02)

Manufacture

Available in bronze and stainless steel, all champagne buckets are manufactured in Sheffield, England, in William Cook's state-of-the-art Yorkshire factories. Created using advanced 3D printing and investment casting technologies, the buckets are manufactured in just a few weeks from the receipt of order.

The stand is made of handwrought iron in a blackened antique finish. Other patinas of the stand are available upon request.

Size

The champagne bucket is available in two sizes:

Bottle size for regular bottles, accommodating two 0.75 litre bottles. (Fig. 01)

Dimensions: Height 19cm x diam. 28cm.

Magnum size for magnum bottles. (Fig. 02)

Dimensions: Height 29cm x diam. 28cm.

Stands are available in two heights: 94cm (best for Magnum size) and 74cm (best for Bottle size).

Customise

All buckets are entirely customisable and can be personalised on the interior belt with a name, place, date, logo or other inscription. The bespoke nature of the champagne bucket makes it an ideal gift for loved ones or the perfect addition for high-end hospitality businesses.

Any individual personalisations or key features are expertly polished for a perfect finish.
